Biodata

María Iliana Castillo is a doctoral candidate in the Department of Teacher and Bilingual Education at Texas A&M University-Kingsville. Her research interests lie primarily in language acquisition, adult education, distance learning, and instructional technology. She is currently working on a research project aimed to explore the teaching and learning possibilities offered by 3D virtual worlds.