Biodata: Fatimatuz Zahro, Irham, & Agwin Degaf

Fatimatuz Zahro graduated from UIN Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang, Indonesia in 2020. She specializes in linguistics and is interested in discourse markers, systemic functional linguistics, discourse analysis, and pragmatics. Her article has appeared in the Journal of Digital Education, Communication, and Arts. Recently, she works at an international NGO for women while pursuing her career in cryptocurrency.

Irham earned master degree in linguistics from Radboud University Nijmegen. He now works at the faculty of Humanities UIN Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang, Indonesia. His research interest covers critical applied linguistics, cultura politics of (English) language teaching, English medium instruction, corpus linguistics, and pragmatics. His article has appeared in Indonesian Journal of Applied Linguistics and has contributed a chapter to be published by Nova Science (in-press 2021). Two of his works are under-reviewed by Routledge for a book chapter and one article related to ELF is under-reviewed in Asian Englishes journal.

Agwin Degaf holds a PhD in Linguistics from Universitas Gadjah Mada Yogyakarta, Indonesia. He currently works at the Faculty of Humanities, UIN Maulana Malik Ibrahim Malang. His research interests cover critical discourse analysis, SFL, news and media studies, and heritage languages. Some of his works has appeared in LiNGUA journal, Ranah, and Journal of English for Academic and Specific Purposes.