

Biodata: Mohammad R. Hashemi, Mohammad Nabi Karimi, & Mahdieh Mofidi

Mohammad R. Hashemi is an assistant professor of applied linguistics at Kharazmi University, Tehran, Iran. His current research interests include qualitative and mixed methods research in applied linguistics, language teacher professionalism, and discourse studies. He has published his work in international journals including the Journal of Mixed Methods Research, The Modern Language Journal, and Applied Linguistics. His recent chapter on mixed methods research appeared in The Routledge Handbook of Research Methods in Applied Linguistics (published in 2020).

Mohammad Nabi Karimi holds a PhD in applied linguistics and currently works as an associate professor in the department of foreign languages, Kharazmi University, Tehran, Iran. His areas of interest include cognitive aspects of second language acquisition and language teacher education. Some of his papers have appeared in international journals such as Studies in Educational Evaluation, System, Australian Journal of Teacher Education, and Innovation in Language Learning and Teaching. He currently serves on the editorial board of System.

Mahdieh Mofidi is a PhD candidate of Applied Linguistics at Kharazmi University, Tehran, Iran. She has taught general English and English for medical purposes for thirteen years. Her current research interests include language teacher education, teacher identity, and teacher well-being.