Bio-data: Tammy Slater and Gulbahar Beckett

Tammy Slater, an Associate Professor at Iowa State University, works primarily with analytic methods drawn from Systemic Functional Linguistics. She has published widely on the development of academic language through content-based and project-based teaching and learning, particularly as these inform the field of education for English language learners.

Gulbahar Beckett is Professor of Applied Linguistics/TESL and Director of the Intensive English Program at Iowa State University. She has published widely on project-based language socialization and has a forthcoming book, Global perspectives on project-based language learning, teaching, and assessment: Key approaches, technology tools, and frameworks co-edited with Tammy Slater.
